

Conversing With God - Where Shall I Go?

I: O God, where shall I go, when the air around me becomes tight from the world closing in around me?

O God, where shall I go, when the frustration of people begins to consume my every thought and emotion?

O God, is there a place where I can escape when the pressures of this life take dominion over every effort for peace?

O God, where can I run, from the indifference of the world...and that of myself?

O God, where shall I go, which direction do I take?

There are so many paths, so many directions, each leading, pleading and pulling me to go here and there, but where O God, shall I Go?

O God, You call me to become the truest reality love in all that I do. If I should respond, where would it take me?

O God, where shall I go, when I'm frightened by Your call?

O God, where shall I go, when I feel all alone?

God: I shall go to the depths of your despair and make you whole once again.

I shall venture into the fears of your life and plant seeds of hope.

I shall journey with you wherever the Spirit beckons .

I shall always be wherever you are.

I shall be where you find happiness and joy.

I shall be where your heart journeys to discover who you truly are.

I am where you will find your rest.

I am where you will receive your strength.

I am wherever you are. In the silence, in the chaos, in the loneliness. Let us go where life calls, let us go together as one.
